Dedication

There is no vision clearer, no service greater,
no profession more dignified,
no work more rewarding,
than that of providing the best possible educational opportunity for each student.

-Mary Lou Toker

Since the late 1960's, the Teacher Education Program has been a significant major within the college.

The Curry College Teacher Education Program is currently enjoying a noteworthy increase in numbers of students in Elementary Education, Moderate Special Needs and the Preschool Program, with approximately 110 students taking part in the various programs.

What has now evolved into the Moderate Special Needs Program, started in 1969 as a program to train "tutors" for Learning Disabled students. Initially this program was separate and apart from the general teacher education program. Adults who generally already possessed a bachelor's degree were trained in a two year part time program to work with L.D. children. It was in the early 1970's when this program became a full part of the college, and undergraduate students were accepted into the training program.

The Elementary Education Certification covered grades Kindergarten to grade 8, and the Learning Disability approval extended through high school.

In the late 1970's and early 80's, the State made numerous changes in the requirements for certification, which had a major impact on our programs. Elementary Education was restricted to grades 1-6, as it now continues to be. What had been an approval for working with learning disabled students, became a full program for teachers of Children with Moderate Special Needs from Nursery through grade 9. This Moderate Special Needs certification also required that candidates also hold a certification for regular education.

It was also during the late 70's and early 80's when our Preschool training program was introduced. Students may choose whether or not to combine this concentration with certification in Elementary Education. This program follows the requirements of the State Office for Children, and allows our students interested in working in preschool and day care environments to qualify according to their standards.

Many of these changes at the State level have shaped the nature of our programs, but the philosophy, approach, individualization, expansion past minimum requirements, etc. have been developed by a dedicated faculty and administration over the years.

The program is very demanding (students must take liberal arts courses along with courses for the major, the program, and the concentrations and often they are working in the field which generates numerous assignments in addition to work from courses), students must be mature, determined, and dedicated to succeed. They have to think beyond their own needs and be emotionally available to deal with the needs of children and their families. They have to master basic skills, think critically, and apply the knowledge they've learned in the Curry Classroom. They must also be creative, sensitive, and flexible.

The following areas are explored in education classes at Curry. Among various lecture materials are some standards that are stressed for students to reach towards in their educational experience at Curry. It is impressed upon Education students that teachers are developers of people! Teachers truly realize that schools are learning environments designed to help children grow. The global task for teachers is to study the subjects of planning and children and to design the best possible learning experiences for these children. It is a fervent belief that the Education students possess a special sensitivity to the growth of children. The Curry education students are competent and goal-oriented and want to make a difference in the lives of children.

Another area that the Education students develop is that of teachers becoming leaders. One of the primary tasks for a teacher is to improve learning opportunities for students. They are trained to become instructional specialists as well as communicators. The classroom provides constant and consistent feedback to the Curry students.

A third area is that of training prospective teachers to be human relations specialists. At Curry it is emphasized to the Education students that teaching requires an awareness/sensitivity of the needs of various student groups with whom the teacher interacts. The program hopes to instill in the students that teachers must be particularly good listeners, hearing not only what is said, but also what is not said.

The Education Department stresses the idea or concept that the students will someday become managers of change. In methods courses and in supervisory roles in the field placement classrooms, the management function of teaching is emphasized to Curry students

The Education Field Placements are a major component of the Education Program at Curry College. Students in Curry College's Education Program have a chance to teach in the urban and the suburban settings. There has always been a very special relationship among students, supervisors, cooperating teachers, principals and education faculty. In the "field" students put theory into practice and become part of the "real" world of teaching.

The Curry Early Childhood Center is a union benefit for the faculty of Curry College. The faculty parents started the program in the Fall of 1981. Parents serve various administrative roles and attend parent teacher meetings about twice a semester.

The Childhood Center statement of purpose reads:

In the belief that there is, within each of us, the potential and need to become competent, independent, and effective, the Curry Early Childhood Center seeks structure, its program to provide a physically safe, emotionally nurturing, and intellectually stimulating environment. The building of a sense of self esteem and consideration for others within each child is a primary goal.

We believe that a flexible family type of environment is most desirable for all the children. Along with this family type atmosphere a preschool program, geared to the developmental level of each child, will be provided for the three and four year olds, with the hope that this will help the children have a successful kindergarten experience. The availability of Curry students doing supervised practica through the pre-school program will allow individual attention for children and better than minimum staffing ratios.

In 1982, Curry expanded its program offering to include a Master of Education degree. The Master of Education program involves its participants in self-growth as learners, as researchers in a discipline, and as practitioners in the field of teaching. This program is uniquely designed to focus on your individual teaching style and professional goals. Using your own classroom as a learning laboratory, you will plan new teaching strategies and educational projects to meet the needs of all your students, mainstreamed as well as regular education students.

The purpose of the Curry College Master of Education program is to provide society with the most competent teachers/scholars. The program, as originally created, focused on assisting educational practitioners to learn the most recent research findings in their respective areas, to apply this data to enhance their educational settings, and thus to maximize the learning of students with diverse learning abilities and styles.

Success for both teachers and students is the optimal goal which has been joined by two equally important ones; you will graduate as an educator who is a scholar in your particular subject discipline, and you will become a "change agent" in your respective setting.

The Curry Education students are goal-oriented, mature and very focused individuals, who are truly involved in the profession of teaching. The Education faculty and the Liberal Arts faculty who have taught the education students for the past four years are proud to have contributed to one of humanity's greatest inventions, EDUCATION.

Orientation

Freshman orientation 1990 proved to be a great success. Kristine O'Brien, the brain behind the theme of orientation, Awakening Your Potential, and all of the Orientation Assistants did a great job in welcoming the freshmen to Curry. As we entered Curry, we were greeted by a huge banner that read "Welcome New Students". The activities that the Orientation Assistants planned made sure that no one was alone and that everyone had a good time. Throughout the four days of orientation we were treated to many different comedians, musicians and guest lecturers. Orientation was topped off with a night out on the town at Nick's Comedy Stop in Boston, which proved to be just what everyone needed before the hectic schedule of classes was to begin.

Homecoming

A puzzle...pieces mixed together, bonded together, separated from each other, and then put together again. That is just how it was for the Curry College alumni...brought together their freshman year, forming bonds throughout their four years, separating at graduation, and brought together again on October 12, 1990, the beginning of Homecoming weekend.

Seven-thirty p.m. that Friday marked the start of a welcoming in honor of the Curry College alumni. The events that occurred consisted of an Athletic Hall of Fame Dinner which honored former Curry College athletes and a continuation of that reunion in the suite of the Hilton at Dedham Place. A Colonel soccer game led off the next chain of events that occurred on Saturday, followed by the Annual Tailgating Party, Colonel football, the Get-Together at the ARC, and the Dinner Dance held at our own Drapkin Center Cafeteria. As Sunday rolled around and Homecoming '90 was coming to an end, the alumni rejoined back at the Hilton for a continental breakfast, and returned to Curry College for an Alumni Soccer Game.

Though it seems as though this special and festive weekend passed quickly, the minutes were treasured. Friends were greeting each other once again at the site where they first met, expressing to one another their happiness and some, their reactions of their return. "It feels weird," some claimed as they walked through what was once home, while others claimed, "I feel as though I've never left."

Homecoming '90 did have to come to an end, but the memories, the friendships, and the happiness will keep the pieces of the puzzle together.

Parent's Weekend

Like the pieces of a puzzle, we are separated from our family when we go off to college. Parents weekend is a time to be joined with the people we love and make the picture whole, if only for a short time.

This year, the weekend began with a brunch for parents in Hafer 119. The football game was a popular event for students to give their parents a taste of the athletic ability here at Curry. Many families ventured into Boston for a "real" dinner, while others attended the 'Parents Night' held at the Alumni Recreation Center. On Sunday, parents were invited again to have brunch in the cafeteria and many students were treated to a shopping spree.

Although many freshmen parents showed up to see how their children were getting along, many upper classmen showed their parents around campus for the second, third or perhaps last parents weekend. What ever each family decided to do at this time of reunion, the turn out of parents was successful, and until the pieces were separated once more, the picture was a happy one.

Halloween

Piece this together: Tim Monahan, the trick-or-treat DJ; John Silber, well in this case, Drew Cochran, making an appealing appearance; black cats roaming about in the dark; and several monsters appearing from the night. Have you pieced the puzzle together yet? Maybe if you take more pieces and link them together, such as great varieties of music and dedications, prizes, snacks and drinks, and a room full of surprises, you will begin to recognize the Curry College Halloween Cafe Party, a dance held for all students of all ages.

But it doesn't end there. Throughout this night of dancing, singing, and laughter came prizes for best costume. Drew Cochran's "Silber" costume won first place, while Danielle Abraham's stunning "Madonna" costume came in second, and "hungry for blood" John Krebs had third place as "Dracula."

But it wasn't all dancing and costumes. Also included was the howling voices and frightening faces that waited for the innocent to pass through the haunted house.

This Halloween Party was a great hit added to the list of Curry's social events held on campus, suited for all of the students for their own entertainment. This evening was that of fun and excitement. Many students attended, some getting more involved than others, such as the blindman and the ace of diamonds that made their rather dashing appearance.

A Special Tribute

JOHN T. LAFLEUR
1959-1991

In memoriam to the beloved remembrance of a recently departed friend, John T. LaFleur, Class of 1989. It is so sad to think of life simply passing by, yet I always thought you and I would continue to share in many special moments together. I always thought that we would laugh and dance at each other's weddings. It seems that our women, family and friends have waited forever for us.

For years enduring the suffering silent and proud, the constant battle to survive, to leave unscathed, the hell known as the Hill. The studies, the splendid professors, the graduating with honors, the days, the weeks, and years spent giving and giving until it seemed your life belonged to everyone but you. Certainly the struggles will always remain, but they will seem less impossible because of the challenges we overcame. I know now that you are in the hands of the Almighty. Rest, be at peace, for no one can hurt you now. Still, I sadly wonder if the answers are really needed to all the remaining questions. Only acknowledgement and change are necessary.

John, the sun shines now. The sky is so blue and seemingly endless. It breaks my heart knowing that you are gone. My dear friend we will never stop missing you. Know that your contributions have not gone unnoticed. That your efforts were not fruitless. That the vision we shared will be carried on... and one day be fulfilled. Yes, you will always be with us, your spirit and memory shall continue to live on.

With our love and prayers,
Friends.

The War of the Seasons

Like an army of soldiers

Hiding under their green camouflage

Facing each other, sizing up one another

Hundreds of them standing tall

Looking proud in their majestic splendor spreading their arms

as far as one could reach trying to touch the sun and flirting with the summer breeze-so easily forgetting the upcoming inevitable conflict of the seasons...

The fall came,

sneaking in from behind a cold raging wind

heavy rain came down

like an avalanche

of deadly bullets during the furious assault, forcing the shedding of the discolored reddish leaves...

Like bleeding injured giants

the valiant trees refused to surrender their positions.

They bent

They bowed

but they never broke

nor lost footage

Though they finally had to admit defeat...

Time of Peace returned

as a cold deadly calm...

The ground stained with bloodish colors took resemblance to a battlefield covered by an uncountable amount of dead soldiers.

The conqueror had come and gone.

Soon after...

without time to count the days

the carnage was totally covered with immaculate white burying and destroying evidence of a ferocious confrontation.

our giants

once bursting with arrogance are now resting to recover from their losses...

They will be back taller, stronger and prouder than ever to be again the challenger and the unmistakable underdog.

There will be a recruiting of new lives

They will sprout, shoot and bud

as green as innocence.

By thousands they will grow to form a larger army and they will take their turn around the vicious cycle unaware of the danger of the war of the seasons.

When you place a seed in the ground to grow a flower,

You then have a choice to pull that seed out of the ground.

But if you love and nurture that flower to it's full bloom, and then one day destroy it,

You are then responsible for that flower's history and so much more before you destroy it.

Appreciation

To: Marie Murphy for her inspiration and confidence,
Dante Germanotta for his insight,
Allan Hunter for his friendship and encouragement,
Ann Levin for making me work and think,
Joe Arsenault for his heart,
Kenneth Wightman for his spirit and strength.

Were it not for these people and Curry College's Justice Education Program, I would not be me.

I became involved in Curry's Justice Education Program in 1989 while being warehoused at Walpole State Prison. Prior to my entrance into the J.E.P. I had accomplished nothing to mark my 15 years of imprisonment except perhaps some 8 years of segregation and a record that labeled me a "management problem." Then, at the urging of fellow prisoner and Curry graduate Kenny Wightman, I entered the J.E.P. and met professor Marie Murphy who is without a doubt, the most inspirational educator I have ever encountered.

Soon after entering J.E.P. I found myself enjoying the experience and looking forward to classes and even worse, enjoying the work. I discovered that I could think thoughts which transcended the walls and that there was a world beyond my cage and people who would and could see me as a person, an individual and not look at my social status (or lack of status). The impact of these discoveries upon me was profound. My vision soon expanded to encompass a global perspective as opposed to the tunnel vision one tends to have after years of imprisonment.

As I view the human condition and what we have done and are doing to the environment, I feel compelled to say that much of what I see in this world is harsh, cold and ugly. But, I am not distressed due in large part to those people named above that have helped me develop the skills and confidence to address some of the harsh realities of life, in as well as out of prison.

The facts of my imprisonment dictate that I may never live in the world beyond these walls, But I know that these walls are not strong enough to suppress my growth as a person and as a member of the world community. Whether in or out of prison, I am determined to have a positive and progressive impact somewhere. It is because of those named above that I believe this to be possible.

In ending, I wish to extend my gratitude and appreciation to Marie, Dante, Allan, Ann and Joe, but especially to Kenny for seeing my worth and forcing me to see it as well.

A Move On The Chessboard

In August of 1990, the Curry faculty became the "Queen," the President became the "King," the administration became the "Knights," and the students became the "Pawns" as the chess game began.

The faculty began working without a contract as it made its first move-asking for an 11% pay increase. The next move was the faculty not getting one, and until we students heard "check mate," we worried about our education as we watched all the moves being taken on the Campus Chessboard. There were meetings held as week by week passed. Who will make the next move? Will it be the final move? Will our community be able to negotiate?

Like in chess, there were strategies, rules, and regulations. Time, patience, and concentration were also needed in making the important decisions that the faculty, president, and administration had to make. And finally, to everyone's relief, the chess game ended with an 8% increase given to the Queen. It was nice to see the Curry Community working together, negotiating, reaching an agreement, and ending with a positive "check mate."

Building Blocks

Nelson Mandela

Nelson Mandela was given a life sentence in 1962 for plotting to overthrow the South African government. He became one of the world's most influential prisoners. But in February, 1990, at the age of 71, Nelson Mandela he was released after lengthy negotiations with President F.W. de Klerk.

Federal Republic of Germany

After months of debate and years of struggle, East Germany and West Germany became the Federal Republic of Germany on Oct. 3. The new country will have a total population of nearly 78 million people and will occupy 137,743 square miles, or about half the size of Texas. Five East German states joined West Germany's 11 and Berlin became the capital. Bonn is the seat of government.

Presidents Bush and Gorbachev

President George Bush and President Mikhail Gorbachev of the Soviet Union met several times during 1990 on economic matters, on nuclear matters and on the matter of a possible war in the Persian Gulf. (Both leaders joined together in condemning Iraq's invasion of Kuwait.) The Cold War between the two super powers has ended and an era of cooperation has begun.

Earth Day

On April 22, an estimated 200 million people all over the planet celebrated the 20th anniversary of Earth Day as activists pleaded for the rise of a new "conservation generation" to care for the fragile environment.

In Washington, Earth Day founder Gaylord Nelson urged more than 100,000 people massed at the foot of the Capitol to work to motivate politicians and corporate leaders to environmental action.

"I don't want to come back here 20 years from now and have to tell your sons and daughters that you didn't do your duty," said Nelson, 74, who originated Earth Day when he was a Senator from Wisconsin. "We've got to raise a conservation generation."

Earth Day was celebrated in more than 3,600 U.S. communities and 140 other nations, according to organizers.

Flag Protection Act

The U.S. Senate rejected a constitutional amendment against flag burning on June 26 with critics arguing that it was already dead and being debated largely as ammunition for use against them at election time.

The Senate voted 58-42 in favor, leaving it nine short of the required two thirds majority needed to approve amendments.

President Bush called for approval of the measure, which said simply that "Congress and the states shall have power to prohibit the physical desecration of the flag of the United States."

But the House rejected it with Democratic leaders saying that it amounted to placing limits on freedom of speech. Speaker Thomas Foley said lawmakers would not get a chance to reconsider this year.

Military imposed on Lithuania

The Soviet army imposed a curfew and declared a general in command of the Lithuanian capital, Vilnius, on January 13, 1991, after troops seized a television tower in an assault that killed 13 and injured about 140 people.

Soldiers shot some protesters and bashed other with the butts of their assault rifles as they stormed the transmitting tower. Some Lithuanians were crushed by the tanks they were trying to stop.

This was the hardest measure taken by Soviet President Mikhail Gorbachev against the Baltic republic since it declared independence on March 11, 1990. The European Community condemned the attack, and Belgium's foreign minister said it could jeopardize a planned $1 billion emergency aid package to Moscow.

President Bush said the crackdown "threatens to set back or perhaps even reverse" the new U.S.-Soviet relationship.

Gulf War

As of mid-October (1990), more than 200,000 U.S. troops had been deployed to Saudi Arabia, Pentagon sources said. They are preparing to defend the desert kingdom from a possible Iraqi attack.

The U.S. Army's heaviest ground firepower reached Saudi soil in August for deployment behind Arab forces manning the front line in the standoff with Iraq.

Dozen's of M1-1P tanks and M2 Bradley armored infantry fighting vehicles, and scores more heavy support vehicles, rolled off two huge transport ships at a port in northeastern Saudi Arabia and made their way north into the desert.

Nothing Gold Can Stay

Nature's first green is gold,
Her hardest hue to hold.
Her early leaf's a flower;
But only so an hour.

Then leaf subsides to leaf.
So Eden sank to grief,
So dawn goes down to day.
Nothing gold can stay.

The Curry College Rugby team is now in it's sixth year of existence and continues to become stronger. This year the Gamecocks held the first alumni game in Curry Rugby history which gave the old timers a chance to share rugby folklore with the new men and also to give them one last chance for glory. A good time was definitely had by all.

This season was different from last year in that we had a fall season as well as a spring one, but it was difficult due to the loss of players that had graduated. Rugby survived with the few remaining hard-core members and the very enthusiastic, high spirited newcomers from the freshman class. The young Rugers have brought new ideas and attitudes that will provide a successful future for the Gamecocks.

This year's officers: Captain, Marc Catanzarite, President, Brian O'Sullivan, Treasurer, Greg Hanigin and Social Chairman, Mike Ventamiglia worked hard to keep Rugby alive at Curry.

"If I had a choice between pleasure and pain,
My answer you would think insane,
People fear what they do not understand,
And they do not listen to things they should hear.
You can have your protected ways...
Just give me Rugby, songs and Cheer!"

MEN'S TENNIS

What looked to be a disappointing season turned into gold for the Curry College men's tennis team. After a disappointing 0-4-1 start, the team had 7 big wins including impressive 5-4 victories over Salve Regina, New England College and Southeastern Mass.

The lineup of Capt. Dave Coughlin, Mike Russo, Gavin Spittle, Andy Rosenthal, Duncan Friedman, Bob "lynx" Reardon, and Matt Belcastro played incredible tennis to finish off the season 7-4-1.

Second year Coach Mark Bowman had his second winning season compiling a 16-7-1 record while at the helm. This team showed and gave 110% everytime they walked onto the courts and hope for a winning season and supportive fans next year.

Curry Theatre

by Cara E. Gizzarelli

The class of 1991 has watched Curry Theatre grow before their eyes. In the fall of 1987, when todays seniors were freshmen, the theatre was simply Hafer 119 with no hints on a theatre. That semester, the production was "A Night Of Tennessee Williams", which was two plays; "27 Wagons Full Of Cotton" and "Suddenly Last Summer." The theatre troupe played to rather small audiences because the theatre was still the best kept secret on campus.

It was not until the spring of 1988 that Curry theatre began to receive the recognition that it was entitled to. The house was packed every single night with enthusiastic audiences happily watching the eccentric Sycamore family in the comedy, "You Can't Take It With You." The play involved a big cast and a family atmosphere that created a real theatre troupe. The theatre members became close and very supportive of each other. Professor Debra Lee Garren encouraged the growing theatre by purchasing the call board and the display case, which are often found in professional theatres !

The play that followed "You Can't Take It With You" was another classic comedy that audiences would come to see more than once. The play was "Harvey" and the theatre had no problems publicizing the performances. The class of 1991 probably vividly remembers the "Where's Harvey?" campaign. Not only did the question pop up everywhere, but a large white rabbit appeared lounging around the Drapkin Center.

Quite a few comedies were to follow "Harvey", such as "The Comedy Crew", which featured Carol Burnett skits and a one act play "An Actor's Nightmare." After that semester lighting bays were installed in Hafer 119 so that lights could stay up all year round.

Neil Simon's, "The Odd Couple" was produced in the fall of 1989. The production was so successful that it was held over an extra night so students who heard of the hilarity of the play could enjoy the comedy. The spring of 1990 was a special semester. It was the semester that a majority of the theatre troupe would be involved in their last show at Curry. The graduating seniors that year were excited to try something new, a classic Commedia dell' arte piece, "The Doctor In Spite Of Himself." With a memorable set and fabulous costumes, the " The Doctor In Spite Of Himself" was produced in theatre of the thrust, seats on three sides of the stage.

The Little Theatre has kept growing. The next addition to the theatre were riser in the summer of 1990. Audiences now were able to enjoy a better view of the stage. Curry Theatre began to expand in even more ways in the fall of 1990. In collaboration with the Curry College Honors Program, seniors Cara Gizzarelli and Rebecca Feinstein staged there honors program projects. Gizzarelli's play "Nothing Wrong With Ida" was produced along with "Sorry, Wrong Number" which was directed by Feinstein and assistant directed by Curry Alumn, Jon Sevigny, who graduated the previous semester.

Feinstein graduated in January of 1991, however she came back to direct with Debra Lee Garren. The two directed the most serious and controversial play presented at Curry. "Getting Out", a play about a woman being released from prison, was produced in the spring of 1991 and performances were seen for two weekends. "Getting Out" was publicized widely and created off campus interest. Once again the theatre facilities grew with the purchase of a elevated lighting booth.

Curry Theatre has also grown in the curriculum since 1987 when there were only two courses that theatre students could enroll in; Acting I and Introduction To Theatre. Since then courses such as Improvisation, Stage Combat and Scene Study have been offered. When the class of 1991 reflects on their education at Curry, they can be proud that they watched and encouraged Curry Theatre grow and nourish talent.

Our Forefathers knew the importance of Freedom of the Press. They knew it so well that they put it on top of the list when they wrote the Bill of Rights. The Currier Times is Curry College's student-run newspaper that contributes in its own way to that lofty ideal as well as giving students practical experience in the writing, editing, advertising, layout and distribution of a newspaper.

The Currier Times returned to publication in 1989 after a year-long hiatus. Under the tutelage of former faculty advisor Vickie Carr, the Times grew from a small, monthly publication to a twelve-page, bi-weekly publication. When Vickie resigned in the spring of 1991, Tom Glynn was brought on board as faculty advisor, bringing with him many years of newspaper experience working for The Patriot Ledger.

Working on the Currier Times is more than just a practical working experience, it creates strong and lasting friendships among the staff members. Editors and writers work closely together, whether it involves brainstorming for story ideas or learning how to meet deadlines, or, as some writers have found out, what happens when deadlines aren't met. True to the shibboleth found on The Currier Times' Wall of Shame, there is "hell to pay" for stories not handed in by deadline.

At the helm of The Currier Times for the 1990-1991 school year was the Editor-in-Chief, senior Mary Kay Kuliesh. Senior Ted Lavash worked as Managing Editor and staff cartoonist. Junior Scott Dworman labored shrewdly as the paper's Business Manager. Senior Jeff Orenstein acquired much needed revenue working as the paper's Advertising Manager. Junior Emily Siegfried, who will be returning as Editor-in-Chief for the 1991-1992 school year, made sure the reporting was unbiased and succinct as News Editor. Senior

The Currier Times is poised to grow even more in future years. The Times is always looking for students who are interested in journalism to work as writers and editors. Weekly meeting are held on Wednesday afternoons in the Student Publications office.

Freedom of the Press is well represented in the college community by The Currier Times; although, in this technological age, Freedom of the Macintosh Ici may be a more appropriate moniker.

Hillel was a very active organization this year. Every member had a terrific time and we engaged in many meetings and activities throughout the year. This Passover we performed a mock Seder and had many students and faculty in attendance. We also had a Hanukkah dinner in which we performed all of the prayers and proceeded to have an enjoyable dinner.

This year Claudia Borden was president and did a good job of turning the club around and getting everyone going in a good direction. Hillel was enjoyable this year and we look forward to a better year in September.

A Prosperous Puzzle

We all know it takes time and patience to put a good puzzle together. The process consists of thinking, matching, and linking. And here at Curry, Kristine O'Brien and Scott Samson thought together and worked together to build a "puzzle" for entertainment, one that would match and link the students of Curry College together. This puzzle is known as the A.R.C., the Alumni Recreation Center.

With the help of others, Kristine, Manager, and Scott, Business Manager, added piece by piece to the A.R.C., making it more fun and more entertaining. On October 12 and 13, Homecoming Weekend, the alumni and seniors of Curry College were first welcomed into the "new" A.R.C. The following Monday, October 15, marked the "Grand Opening" for all students.

Several pieces were needed to put this puzzle together, pieces such as food, drink, music, and conversation, along with pub nights, movies, and t.v. entertainment. All of these pieces contribute to making our campus more social and more friendly by bringing the students together. The A.R.C. has grown to become an important landmark of entertainment on the Curry campus, and will keep growing as more pieces are added to this prosperous puzzle.

Junior Year, the half way mark of our college years. The work gets REALLY tough and the stress level never seems to lower. Majors are declared and the realization of future responsibilities of the "real world" start to sink in.

But it's not over yet! Life long friends are established and we watch some of them move to the other side of campus—(Leaving those of us behind, waiting anxiously to turn 21.) It's official The food is terrible, but we've realized we're too poor to eat at D'Angelo's every night, so we grin and bare it. We have one more year to party and sleep in until noon after the occasional(?) all nighter. (And, we've figured out how to schedule classes at a respectable hour.)

Although the future is coming quickly into focus, let none of us forget the time we still have to be in college and to be carefree— But it's our toughest year academically, when we work our hardest and at this point, although it's scary, we know we can make it!

SOPHOMORES

Sophomore year is the dividing year at Curry College. Many students are faced with the decision to stay, or to move on. Whether we stay or go, there are many memories to hold on to. In the pursuit of education, we have come to build many close friendships. In the two years we have spent together, we have learned from each other, broadening our horizons. Because of the intermixing differences in appearances, interests and talents we are individuals created from an experience that far exceeds what is found in our academic curriculum.

Being a freshman at Curry College is a big deal. A big deal in adjusting and just surviving. One year ago we were big fish in a small pond and now we are small fish in a big lake. We come from different places and backgrounds, but we have one thing in common, we choose Curry. With that characteristic we will spend the next four years finding other things in common with each other.

Being a freshman is a positive thing. Freshmen can experience so many new things. Everything is new which makes the whole experience unique. The first feelings many of us felt were fear of not meeting people or failing classes, scared to leave our security of home, and frightened that our room mate would be abnormal. After arriving we were faced with a new set of emotions, freedom, independence, and stress.

They say that in college one meets the friends which will last a lifetime. High school friends are great when you're home, but they are nothing like your college buddies. With your new friends you can discover Boston's historical sites and nightlife it has to offer. In your first year at Curry, your friendships that you make, are what kept the stress of school work and adapting to the new life-style from getting to you. Friends are one of the most important things one gets from college.

In college you get to choose your own classes and major. That whole concept of choose your own is what being a freshman or adult is about. As a freshman you value your independence more so than a senior would, since it is a new gift. Also in just starting college you are not pressured with the stress other class levels have, sophomores of deciding a major, juniors of passing your major related classes, and seniors of graduating and finding a job. Remember that your college years are to be the best time of your life.

We've attempted much within this book. I hope that you enjoy the unique design, even if it was your head that was cut out of the picture..... Hey- Good-luck M.T.

So, I'm done. Judy, I still don't want to talk about it. I have to thank the "rents" and M&D and Gram& Bach for being the coolest and the extended family of Nay, Cind, D'O's, Ed etc. for being supportive and all that b.s.. Thanks to the people that told me to smile & I'd make it through esp. the Cafe gang- you're the best! Then, those dear to my heart that I will miss seeing every day; B, Beaner, Allan, Teddy, Mike, Rach, Pooch, BOOb, Heidi/Stewy, Judy, Marlene, MMS, Tom, Sarah& Gav, Nancy, Nelly, Chrispy/Noonan/ Bucky at lunch, the Boyz in Quincy, yes you too Keels. Anyway-Four years of my life, done -luck to you all! Steve baby-we're outta here!

Wow, is it all over. The completion of another year and highlighted with another yearbook. Special thanks to Martha for being a good sport in dealing with me and many of the other obstacles that stood in the way. Do you believe it Martha, another one. Thanks to all that helped out day and night throughout the school year. Also to those that Martha has mentioned above and to everyone else for their support. I think in time as moments pass by and everyone is further on down the trail, it will be good to know that opening a yearbook like this, takes you back to a place that has been a part of what you are today.
